Budget Cuts Hit Courts in 1982

State Revenue Shortage Slows Operation

A projected state revenue shortfall estimated as high as $70 million left state agencies reeling from budget cuts in 1982. The judicial branch, while exempt from "holdbacks" under the "Separation of Powers Act of 1981" voluntarily reduced spending in 1982 as the Supreme Court sought to aid the Governor and legislators in coping with mounting state deficits.

Fiscal casualties included in-state and out-of-state education programs, including the annual magistrate's institute, specialty courses dealing with criminal law search and seizure issues, evidence, and the Uniform Commercial Code, as well as the 1982 Idaho Judicial Conference. Position hirings were postponed, circuit riding by trial judges to outlying communities was reduced, state law library purchases were cancelled and supreme court administrative staff salaries were frozen.

In December 1982, the Administrative Director of the Courts announced further delays in filling judicial positions in Nez Perce, Camas, Bannock, Jefferson, Teton, and Butte Counties, and Governor John V. Evans was asked to postpone appointing a new district judge in Ada County for three months. With the volunteer help of retired judges Arthur Oliver and James Towles, it was hoped that 1983 trial calendars could be kept from collapsing in Ada County, but it was uncertain whether further spending reductions would be necessary before the end of the fiscal year.

The judiciary was hard pressed to reduce spending by any significant amount in 1982, because of the personnel intensive nature of the state court system. Fully 92% of the judicial appropriation represents personnel costs, with statutory salaries representing 85%. The Administrative Office of the Courts has not added a single staff position in the last nine years despite a 160% increase in caseloads, a 20% increase in the number of judges and the addition of a new court of appeals. Thus, any spending reduction was liable to seriously effect court operations.

JUDICIAL EXPENDITURES
AS A PERCENTAGE OF TOTAL STATE EXPENDITURES
FISCAL YEAR 1982

As the year ended, court officials were attempting to make their case with state legislators to avoid further cutbacks: the judicial branch of government consumes only 1.6% of the state budget, and returns to state and local governments 60 cents of every dollar spent. Society's primary dispute settling mechanism is not an optional government program--it is a constitutional necessity.

Highlights

DRUNK DRIVERS p. 4
While other traffic cases are down, drunken drivers are arrested at a record pace.

VOTERS UPSEAT JUDGES p. 8
For only the second time in 10 years, voters in two counties refused to retain their magistrate judge.

CASELOADS DECLINE p. 3
After a decade of steady increases, caseloads fell for the second straight year as Idaho feels an ecomomic pinch.

THE DISAPPEARING LAW p. 5
Idaho's twice-delayed Traffic Infractions Act is put off one more time, for court-supported amendments to do away with jail threats for non-payment of fines.

BIKE BILL SPARKS CONTROVERSY p. 8
Idaho's new bike code is either a disaster or a great reform, depending on your perspective.

New Chief Justice

Idaho has a new Chief Justice, and for the first time he'll be around for awhile, thanks to a new constitutional amendment.

Appeals Court Bites Backlog

It took four years to eatablish. It was debated and dissected. Some called it unnecessary and duplicative, and the bill to create it barely made it through the legislature. But when the Idaho Court of Appeals opened its doors for business on January 4, 1982,it worked so well that it was hard to remember what all the controversy was about.

The first year results were superlative. The Court of Appeals reviewed 150 cases, issued 101 written opinions and won the immediate respect of the practicing Bar. By the end of 1982, the Court of Appeals had helped the Supreme Court cut over a month off the average time from filing to disposition of an appeal, and the Idaho Court of Appeals was an established institution.

During 1982, the Court of Appeals established the internal procedures which will govern its operations in future years: the Court will travel throughout the state, as Judge Roger Swanstrom describes, "to where the cases are;" the Court won't assign cases for opinion until after oral argument; and all three judges prepare equally for oral argument.

The new court promises to be innovative, as evidenced by Judge Don Burnett's maxim: "tradition alone is not an acceptable reason for perpetuating an appellate procedure."

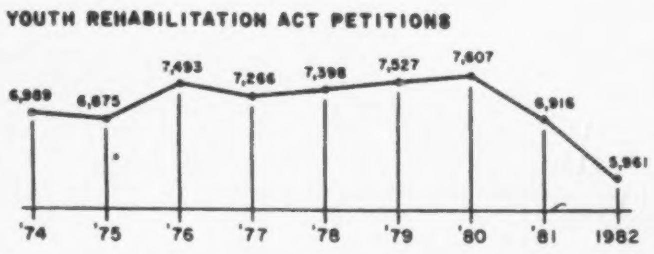
Juvenile Delinquency Complaints Drop For Second Straight Year

It's hard to tell just why, but despite public complaints about rising juvenile crime, the number of juvenile delinquency complaints being filed with the courts declined for the second straight year. The number of delinquency complaints (technically called Youth Rehabilitation Act "petitions") has remained at consistent levels for the past 9 years. In 1981, the total of new petitions decreased 9%, and in 1982 fell another 14% to a total of 5,961 petitions.

This sizable drop in new juvenile cases filed with the courts, when compared with Idaho's population growth over the same period and generally increasing juvenile crime rates of other states, probably evidences the successful efforts of courts and social agencies to divert less serious juvenile charges from the courts. With the leveling off in the number of youths placed in institutional settings reported by the state Department of Health and Welfare, along with the increased involvement of private citizens and agencies in prevention and treatment programs for juveniles, juvenile court caseloads are seen as favorable trends.



An additional factor in the drop of delinquency complaints may be the state's "get tough" attitude toward juvenile crime. In recent years the Idaho legislature has passed laws lowering the age at which a juvenile may be prosecuted (now 14 years) and requires a juvenile to be prosecuted as an adult for serious and violent offense. The constitutionality of that latter change is now being tested before the Idaho Supreme Court.

On The Record

"Our citizens' legal and constitutional rights must be protected, despite financial restrictions."

--Chief Justice Charles R. Donaldson, upon appointment as chief justice for the next four years.

"The advent of the Court of Appeals has reduced the length of time, from filing of Notice of Appeal to decision, in a sizeable number of cases. The effort of our Court has been very well received, and without the Court of Appeals there are 101 cases that probably would not have been decided on appeal during 1982."

--Idaho Court of Appeals
Chief Judge Jesse R. Walters

"I do not believe there is any direct connection between habits learned when driving a bike and how someone will later drive a car. Under the present law, at least half of all kids don't stop at stop signs; therefore we are teaching them to disregard the law and not to follow the law. As to educating children, the significant lesson should be to warn children that when you are on a bike you are in danger. Basically, the present stop sign law is unenforceable."

--Lincoln County Magistrate Judge Daniel C. Hurlbutt, on the need for a new bicycle code (See story on page 8 .)

APPELLATE FILINGS SET RECORD p. 2

The highest number of new appeals in Idaho's history dealt a blow to efforts to reduce pending cases before the Supreme Court and Court of Appeals.

IS THE DRUG PROBLEM WORSENING? p. 4

For the first time in several years, court filings show evidence of increased drug prosecutions.

TEACHING THE JUDGES p. 7

While the rest of the judiciary's judicial education program was scuttled by the state appropriations holdback, orientation training for new judges is alive and well.

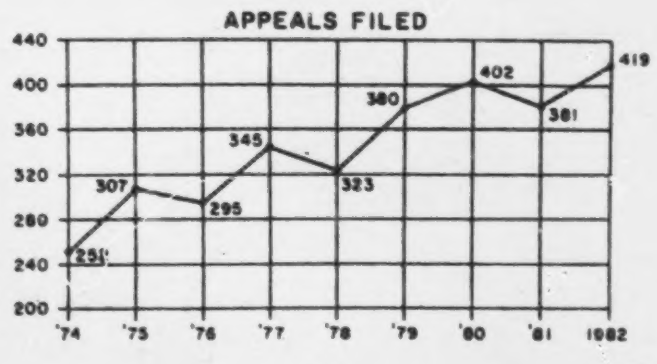
JURY INSTRUCTION MAY CHOP APPEALS p. 6

With the help of the Idaho Law Foundation, preprinted form jury instructions may reduce errors in the trial courts.

Appellate Filings Set Record

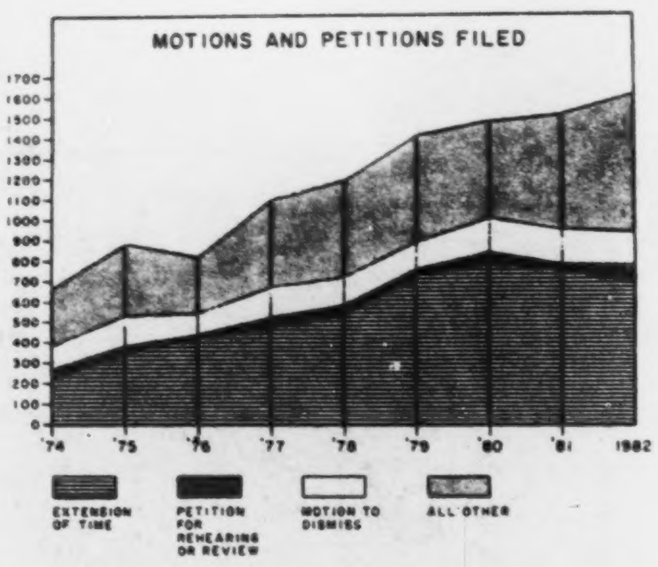
Perhaps no where else has the litigious nature of American society been more apparent that in the spiraling number of appeals. Increasing numbers of litigants are refusing to accept an initial court decision as final, and a "take it all the way to the top" attitude is flooding state and federal appellate courts throughout the country.

Idaho has not been an exception to national trends and while trial court caseloads are declining, appellate filings are reaching new heights. Another record was set, as 419 new appeals were filed with the Supreme Court in 1982, up 10% from 1981 and outdistancing the previous record 402 appeals set in 1980.



Despite the record filings in 1982, court officials point out that it is still too early to predict whether appeals might level off or even decline in the near future. The business recession and high unemployment may have a delayed dampening effect on appeals, and it is still early to determine whether the statutory increase in the interest rate on judgments and the presence of the Court of Appeals might reduce filings or lead to a higher rate of settlements before oral argument.

Petitions and motions dropped slightly in 1982, but continued to be a considerable strain on Idaho's appellate system. During 1982, 1,428 new petitions and motions were filed with the Court. The Justices dealt finally with 1,397. The number of new petitions and motions during 1982 decreased 5.2% from the 1981 record total of 1,507. Also filed with the Court during the year were 36 original proceedings and 3 attorney discipline matters. Some original petitions, like the challenge to the State Tax Commission's authority to oversee property tax levies, required substantial time and effort.



With the advent of the Court of Appeals, appellate dispositions reached an all time high during 1982. The two courts disposed of 354 appeals in 1982, a 3.8% increase from the record dispositions in 1980.

Reversal of Ten-Year Trend

Caseloads Decline In Trial Courts

While the federal bankruptcy courts are booming, the general business recession and shortfalls in state and local government revenues appear to be having a negative impact on trial court workloads, as case filings fell for the second consecutive year.

After a 6% decline in new case filings in 1981, new cases coming into the courts dropped again in 1982,with the total filings in all courts of 296,733 dropping about 2% or 5,380.

Changing Growth Patterns

During the decade of the 1970's, new cases had been filed in the Idaho courts at an almost uniform 4-5% annual increase. State officials became accustomed to predictable growth and responded accordingly, by building new courtrooms and adding more judges to accommodate heavier workloads.

The growth in trial court business had a number of contributing factors during the 1970's, including the sharp growth of Idaho's population and the increased numbers of attorneys admitted to practice. Between 1970 and 1980, the state's population grew by 32% from 713,015 to 934,935, and the number of attorneys almost tripled, from about 600 to 1,632. While those factors continue to influence trial court business, the decline in case filings which first occurred in 1981 may signal a leveling off of growth or be the result of recessionary influences on the state economy.

Winners and Losers

Big losers in 1982 were civil cases in the district courts and traffic cases in the magistrate division. District court civil cases dropped from 6,036 new cases in 1981 to 5,573 filings in 1982, a 7.7% decrease.

Traffic cases shrunk by 5.5% in 1982, following a 1981 decline of 13% in new complaints filed with the courts. The 1982 total of 198,354 traffic complaints may reflect an exceptionally cold winter as well as erosions in funding for local law enforcement agencies or concentration on non-traffic enforcement.

Overall, magistrate division filings decreased 1.7% from 292,221 in 1981 to 287,240 in 1982. District court filings faded by 4%, from 9,892 in 1981 to 9,493 in 1982.

Small claims departments filings jumped again in 1982, up 15.7% from 14,217 in 1981 to 16,444 in 1982. Court watchers have speculated that impoverished plaintiffs are choosing to file suit against asset-poor defendants in the small claims departments, waiving balances of claims above $2,000, rather than paying attorney fees to gain a judgment in the magistrate division which might be uncollectable.

Dispositions Fall

Case filings alone do not tell the whole story of business in the trial courts. Trial judges report that individual cases have become more complex and that the time required to dispose of individual cases has expanded.

Reflecting the decline in new case filings, district judges and judges of the magistrate division disposed of 8.3% fewer cases in 1982 than in 1981, disposing of 290,740 cases during the past calendar year, as compared with 317,085 cases in 1981. The number of cases pending in the trial courts on December 31, 1982 was 49,579.

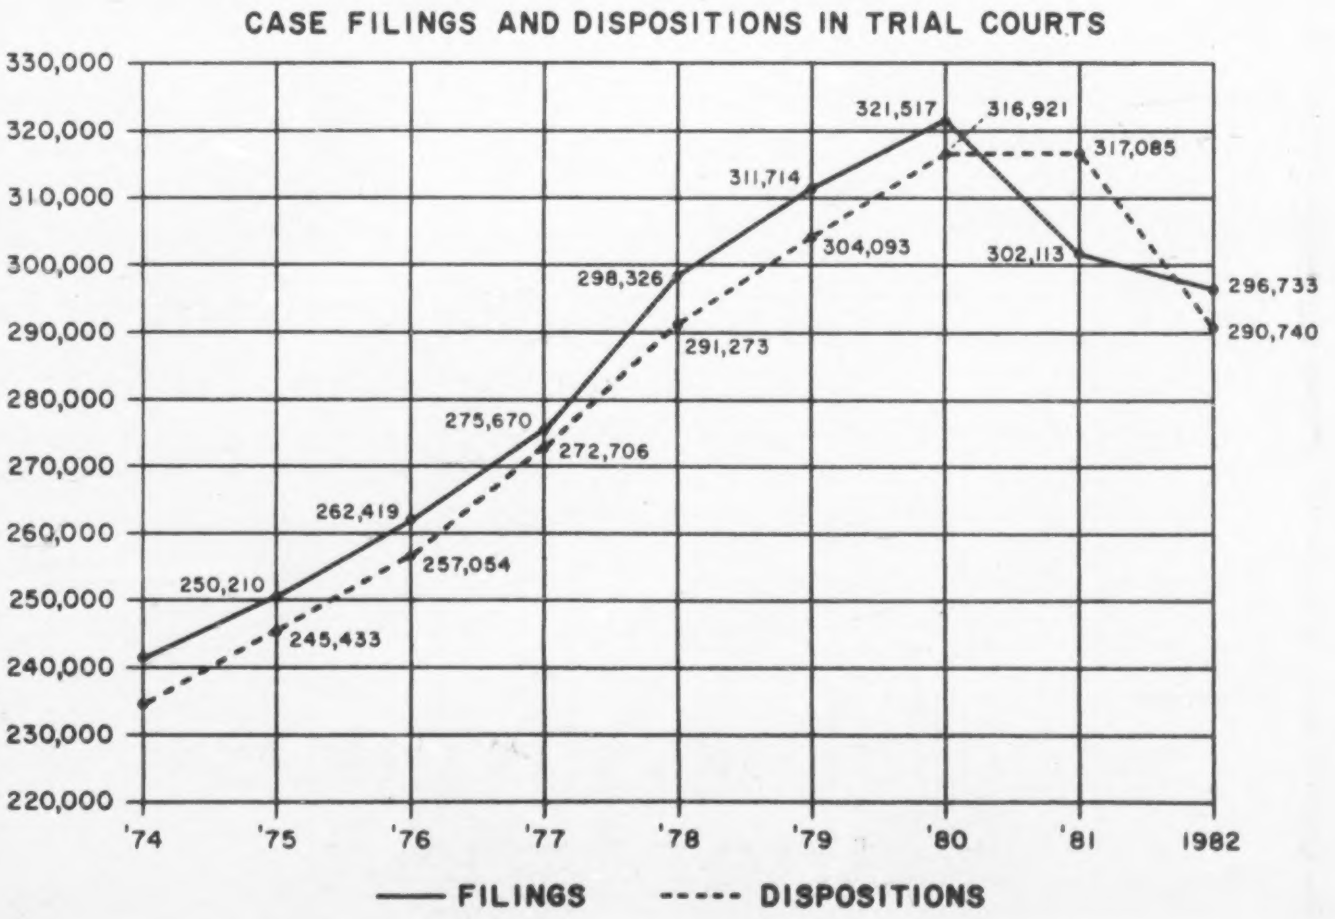
The average number of new cases filed for each district judge in the state in 1982 was 306 cases, while the average for judges of the magistrate division was 4,046 new cases. This compares with new case filings in the prior years of 324 cases per district judge and 4,116 new cases per magistrate judge. The district judges disposed of an average of 294 cases per judge during the year, while the judges of the magistrate division averaged 3,967 dispositions per judge.

Of the civil cases which received a final judgment in the trial courts in 1982, 9,922 or 21.6% were disposed of with a court or jury trial. On the criminal side, 98% of these cases were disposed of through pleas or dismissals, while 4,609 or 2% received a court or jury trial.

Details Available

Interested parties may obtain from the Administrative Office of the Courts detailed summaries by case type, showing filings, dispositions, and pending cases for the district court and magistrate division statewide,by district and by county.This report, normally distributed as part of the annual report, will be available only upon request due to revenue shortages.

CASE FILINGS AND DISPOSITIONS IN TRIAL COURTS



Appellate Filings Set Record . . .

During 1982 the Supreme Court produced 116 majority opinions, while the Court of Appeals published 101 opinions.

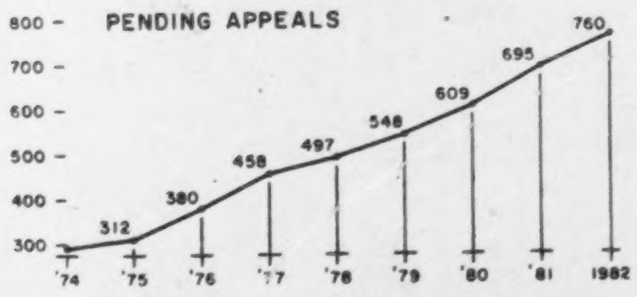
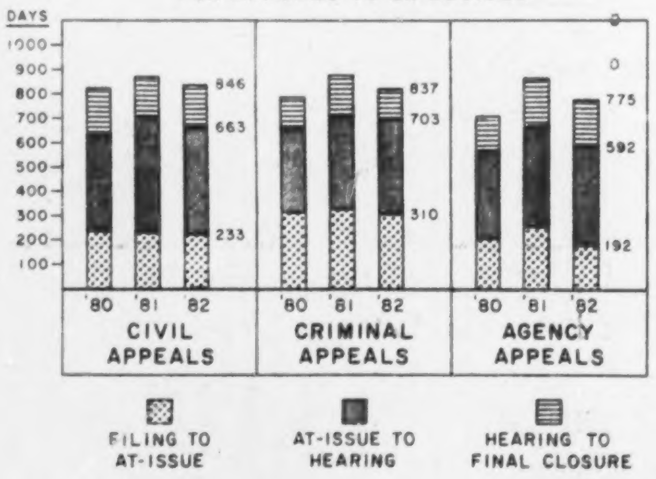
The total number of appeals pending has risen steadily and sharply since 1974. Despite the help of the Court of Appeals, pending appeals jumped again in 1982, but significantly less than would have been the case had the Court of Appeals not been in existence. At year's end there were 760 appeals which had been filed and were still awaiting final disposition.



Raw numbers of pending appeals do not tell the whole story: the amount of time people must wait to have their appeal decided is of more importance to individual litigants, and in this statistic there has been considerable improvement, largely as a result of the creation of the Court of Appeals.

During 1982 it took an average of 838 days from the time an appeal was filed with the Supreme Court until either the Supreme Court or Court of Appeals finally concluded its work on the case. This average was 35 days less than the average in 1981, and a full four and one-half months less than would have been the delay without the Court of Appeals.

AVERAGE NUMBER OF DAYS FOR APPEALS TO BE DECIDED



The Court of Appeals also helped cut down the total amount of time it takes from when a case is fully briefed and ready to be argued until oral argument is held by one of the two courts. For the first time in recent memory, attorneys and litigants did not have to wait for more than a year to argue their case before an appellate court.

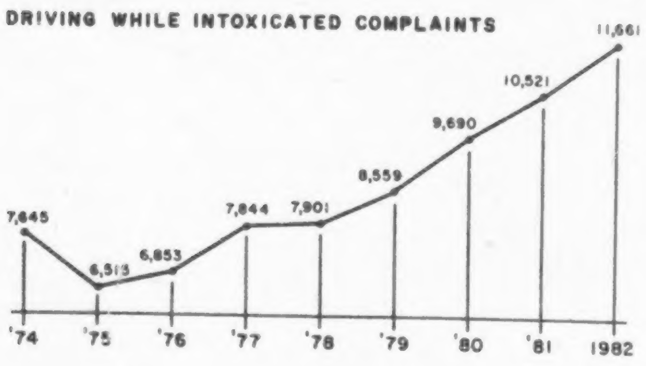
Alcohol-Related Driving Cases Continue To Accelerate

With pressure mounting on the Idaho Legislature to do something about drunk drivers, 1982 saw another sharp rise in the number of complaints charging defendants with driving under the influence of alcohol. On the heels of an 8% increase in 1981, drunk driving complaints jumped almost 11% in 1982, to the highest level in Idaho's history.

The number of complaints charging defendants with driving while under the influence of alcohol has risen steadily since 1975, from a low of 6,515 to a 1982 record high of 11,661 cases. These figures confirm an undesirable trend upward in alcohol-related driving incidents brought to the attention of the courts. While more aggressive enforcement, rather than increased alcohol usage, could be a cause of the increased case filings, the 1982 level of alcohol-related driving cases is cause for concern for state officials and persons using the public highways.

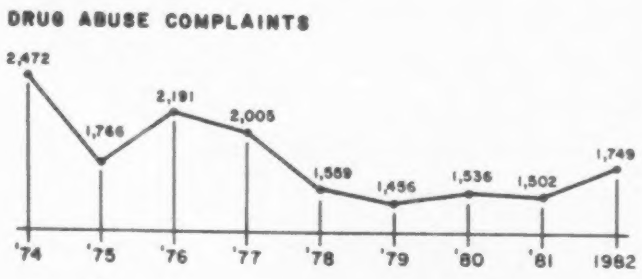


The 1982 legislative session witnessed attempts to adopt mandatory jail sentences for persons convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs, but no one measure received approval of both houses before adjournment. The 1983 legislature is virtually certain to pass some mandatory minimum sentence legislation dealing with the convicted drunken driver.

Part of the pressure on the legislature stems from a public perception that DWI defendants are not being dealt with sternly enough by the courts. Judicial endorsement in some case-ending bond forfeitures, as well as statewide use of withheld judgments to avoid formal conviction (last year, approximately 40% of drunk driving defendants received withheld judgments) have lent credence to public complaints that judicial sentences are not detering drunk drivers.

Is The Drug Problem Worsening?

Law enforcement agencies have continued to voice concern over an alleged increase in the flow of illegal drugs into Idaho. Now, for the first time in several years, official court filings in 1982 show that prosecutions for drug offenses are on the increase.

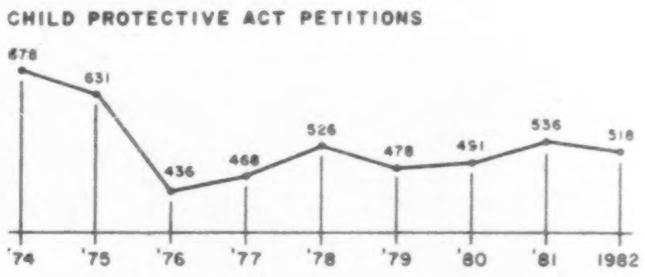


After a slight lapse in 1981, drug related complaints filed in the state courts took a sharp upward climb in 1982. There were 1,749 new drug abuse complaints filed in 1982, about a 16% increase from the 1981 total of 1,502 complaints.

Perhaps surprisingly, petitions against juveniles for drug-abuse charges dwindled to 44 statewide, down from 52 petitions in 1981. Petitions against juveniles represented only 2.5% of the total drug abuse case filings in Idaho.

Child Abuse Complaints Stay Level

Amendments to the Child Protective Act which took effect in 1976 appear to be keeping down the number of formal petitions under the Act. The Department of Health and Welfare is now authorized to resolve informally certain complaints of child abuse, neglect or abandonment, which may explain the lower number of formal case filings which has been the trend since 1976. The 1982 total of 518 petitions was a decrease of 18 cases from the 1981 total.



Of the cases of neglect and abuse coming before the courts in 1982, the courts dealt finally with 543, compared with the 1981 total of 544 dispositions.

The trial courts disposed of about the same number of drug cases in 1982 as in 1981, making final judgments in 2,008 cases in 1982 as compared with 2,011 cases in 1981.

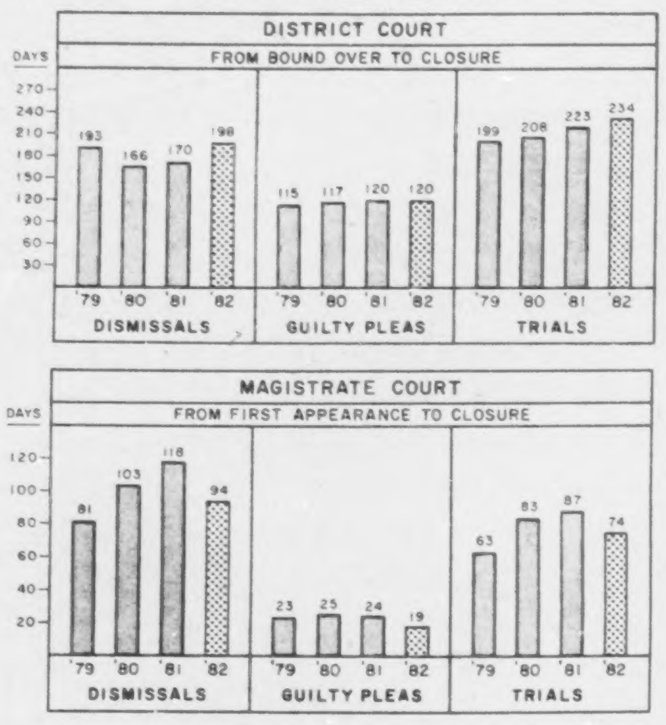
How Long Justice Is Taking

In many cases, the amount of time it takes to get a decision is almost as important as the decision itself. How can one measure how long a defendant should wait in a jail cell before his case is heard, or what is a reasonable wait for a parent in a child custody action? While Idaho has never experienced the five-year trial delays of some of the urban states, the judiciary nevertheless is concerned about delay and has begun measuring its performance.

Even after a case has been filed in court, there are many reasons for delay which are beyond the courts' control. Problems in scheduling witnesses, late filing of attorney briefs, extensions of time to obtain appointed counsel, and extra time needed for presentence reports can delay final disposition of a case.

For years, civil case operating times have been left up to the individual litigants, although recently the courts have become more active in moving the civil calendar. Criminal cases always have received a priority in court scheduling. With the help of statutory time limits for certain procedures, criminal case processing times are much less than civil cases.

CRIMINAL CASE PROCESSING



A recent survey conducted by the Administrative Office of the Courts showed district judges throughout the state calendaring civil trials from 2 to 12 months in advance with waiting time for criminal trial dates varying from 1 to 5 months. The relationship between pending cases and the time taken to dispose of these cases must be watched carefully, to insure that judicial resources are maintained at needed levels in future years.

While the averages never can tell the story of delay

Traffic Infractions Act Faces Another Delay

Now you see it on the books, now you don't. That's been the story to date on the new Idaho Traffic Infractions Act. Delayed twice to correct technical defects, the new Act now has been delayed one more time -- but this time for substantive reasons.

Enacted to decriminalize minor traffic offenses, the Traffic Infractions Act was scheduled to go into effect on March 1, 1983. The Act would prohibit arrest and jail sentences, eliminate jury trials, set a standard penalty, and generally streamline handling of most traffic offenses previously treated as misdemeanors.

One remaining inconsistency in the Act has led to a proposed amendment and yet another delay: while a person may not be incarcerated for a traffic infraction itself, non-payment of a traffic infraction penalty may result in a driver being held in contempt of court and jailed until payment is made.

At the request of the judiciary, a bill was passed by both houses and signed by the Governor, delaying the Traffic Infractions Act until July 1, 1983, to give the legislature time to consider an alternative method of enforcement of non-payment of penalties through the licensing process. The proposal would allow a driver's license to be suspended for non-payment of a court imposed penalty and also would eliminate the requirement that a driver sign a uniform citation or face arrest.

Upon enactment of final amendments, court officials plan a series of regional seminars to educate judges, law enforcement officers, and clerks on the new Act and attendant court procedure.

Since the Traffic Infractions Act was passed in 1981, implementation of the complicated statute has consumed considerable time of court officials in reviewing the Act and proposing technical amendments. When the Act goes into effect on July 1, 1983, the courts will have played a major role in decriminalizing minor traffic offenses.

Jury Instructions May Chop Appeals

Intended to educate, often destined to obfuscate, jury instructions on the state of the law have confused jurors since territorial days. The bane of trial judges and lawyers, jury instructions must be prepared individually in each case and approved by the trial judge after haggling between opposing counsel. Creation and approval of jury instructions is time consuming and often the source of reversals and new trials after a successful appeal.

In the fall of 1982, a joint project of the Supreme Court and the Idaho Law Foundation came to fruition with the publication of the Idaho Jury Instructions, a set of pattern jury instructions designed to take the pain and suffering (and error) out of instructing civil juries on the law. The publication was the result of a two-year study by a fourteen-member committee of lawyers and judges headed by Justice Charles R. Donaldson and funded by the Idaho Law Foundation, the education and research arm of the Idaho State Bar.

Early in 1981 the Supreme Court had appointed the committee to undertake a comprehensive revision of the civil pattern jury instructions first published in 1974. That earlier effort, had produced the first pattern instructions in use in Idaho, but was badly in need of revision and expansion.

Following publication of the Idaho Jury Instructions a series of regional seminars co-sponsored by the Supreme Court and the Idaho Law Foundation were held throughout the state to educate lawyers and judges on the use of the new pattern instructions. The instructions are generalized forms for clear,simple application of the law to civil jury cases, and it is hoped that the instructions will be continually updated as court decisions and statutes modify and expand the law.

Also serving on the jury instructions committee were Louis F.Racine,Jr., Richard C. Mellon, Jr., William A. Stellmon, Jeffrey A. Strother, Larry R. Duff, Jay D. Sudweeks, J. Robert Alexander, Hon. Jesse R. Walters, Jr., Hon. Arnold T. Beebe, Hon.Dar.Cogswell, Hon. G. D. Carey, Brian Ballard, Hon. Daniel Meehl and Kit Furey, Recorder.

Judges To Urge Sentencing Law Changes

Working cooperatively with the legislature has been a hallmark of the state judiciary. So it was natural in 1982 when the legislature became concerned about technical clarification of the recent mandatory sentencing laws to turn to the judiciary for help. Eschewing an expensive interim committee, Representative T. W. Stivers asked the judiciary for advice, and the Supreme Court appointed a special committee to study and recommend sentencing law changes.

Chaired by First District Judge Dar Cogswell, the committee reviewed the various mandatory, minimum and enhanced penalty provisions enacted by the legislature since 1978 and proposed a bill to be considered by the legislature during the 1983 session. The bill would qualify when enhanced penalties could be imposed and prohibit multiple enhanced penalties.

Other committee members included: Hon. J. Ray Durtschi, Hon. Arthur P. Oliver, Hon. Edward J. Lodge, Byron Johnson, and William Hamlett.

in an individual case, they do help describe the overall picture of court operations. Fortunately,the Idaho Legislature has recognized the importance-- and the real costs -- of court delay, and consistently has provided the additional trial court judges who have been needed in recent years to meet the rising caseloads caused by the state's growth and development.

It stands alone . . .

Compare and you'll see why Federal Procedure, L Ed is the most practical and comprehensive federal procedural set on the market.

First, Federal Procedure, L Ed covers all federal procedure: Traditional courts, specialized courts (such as the Bankruptcy and Tax Courts) and administrative agencies (such as the FTC, IRS, NLRB, SEC). The two competitive sets cover only the traditional courts. Period.

Second, you'll find what you need faster in Federal Procedure, L Ed because we treat all topics in an encyclopedic A-to-Z fashion. Your answers are in one place — not scattered through numerically arranged rules, as in the competitive sets.

Third, we tie you into our unique Total Client-Service Library, with references that direct you to pertinent material in Federal Procedural Forms, USCS, Am Jur, ALR and other major publications. None of our competitors offer anything similar.

Teaching The Judges

While the rest of the judiciary's judicial education program was scuttled by the state holdback of appropriations, orientation training for new judges is alive and well. During 1982 judges received training from other judges and administrators before or shortly after taking the Bench to try to ease their transition to judicial life.

Beginning with one of the nation's only state-required videotaped mock trial exercise, where the judges are videotaped in a clinical trial situation and then critiqued on their bench techniques, new Idaho judges received two days of training in subjects ranging from commercial law to ethics and caseload management. The course of study is concentrated and challenging, but as Judge Michael Griffin, who completed the course in 1982 concludes, "this program is better than any Bar review course or program for attorneys I've attended."

Public Terminal?

Automated legal research is not new. But the concept of a public terminal for use by judges, government and private attorneys, and citizens is still struggling for a foothold in the courts.

Most studies have shown that a public terminal is not cost-beneficial for a judiciary to sponsor. A full time operator is needed to assist the casual user and operating costs are high. But a new study in Idaho is trying to determine whether a combination of public and private resources can change the equation.

In the fall of 1982 the Administrative Director of the Courts appointed a committee chaired by Court of Appeals Judge Don Burnett to examine the feasibility of establishing a public automated legal research terminal in the State Law Library in Boise. The committee is evaluating venders and determining the prospective level of usage at such a terminal, as well as deciding whether a combination of state and Idaho Law Foundation funds could get such a program off the ground.

The prospects are exciting. A public terminal in the State Law Library could enable judges and lawyers in remote locations to have the most modern research facility only as far away as their telephone.

In May of 1983 the committee's report is due, and the courts will find out whether a public terminal is in their future.

Donaldson Elected Chief Justice By Unanimous Court

First Chief Justice To Be Elected By Vote of Court

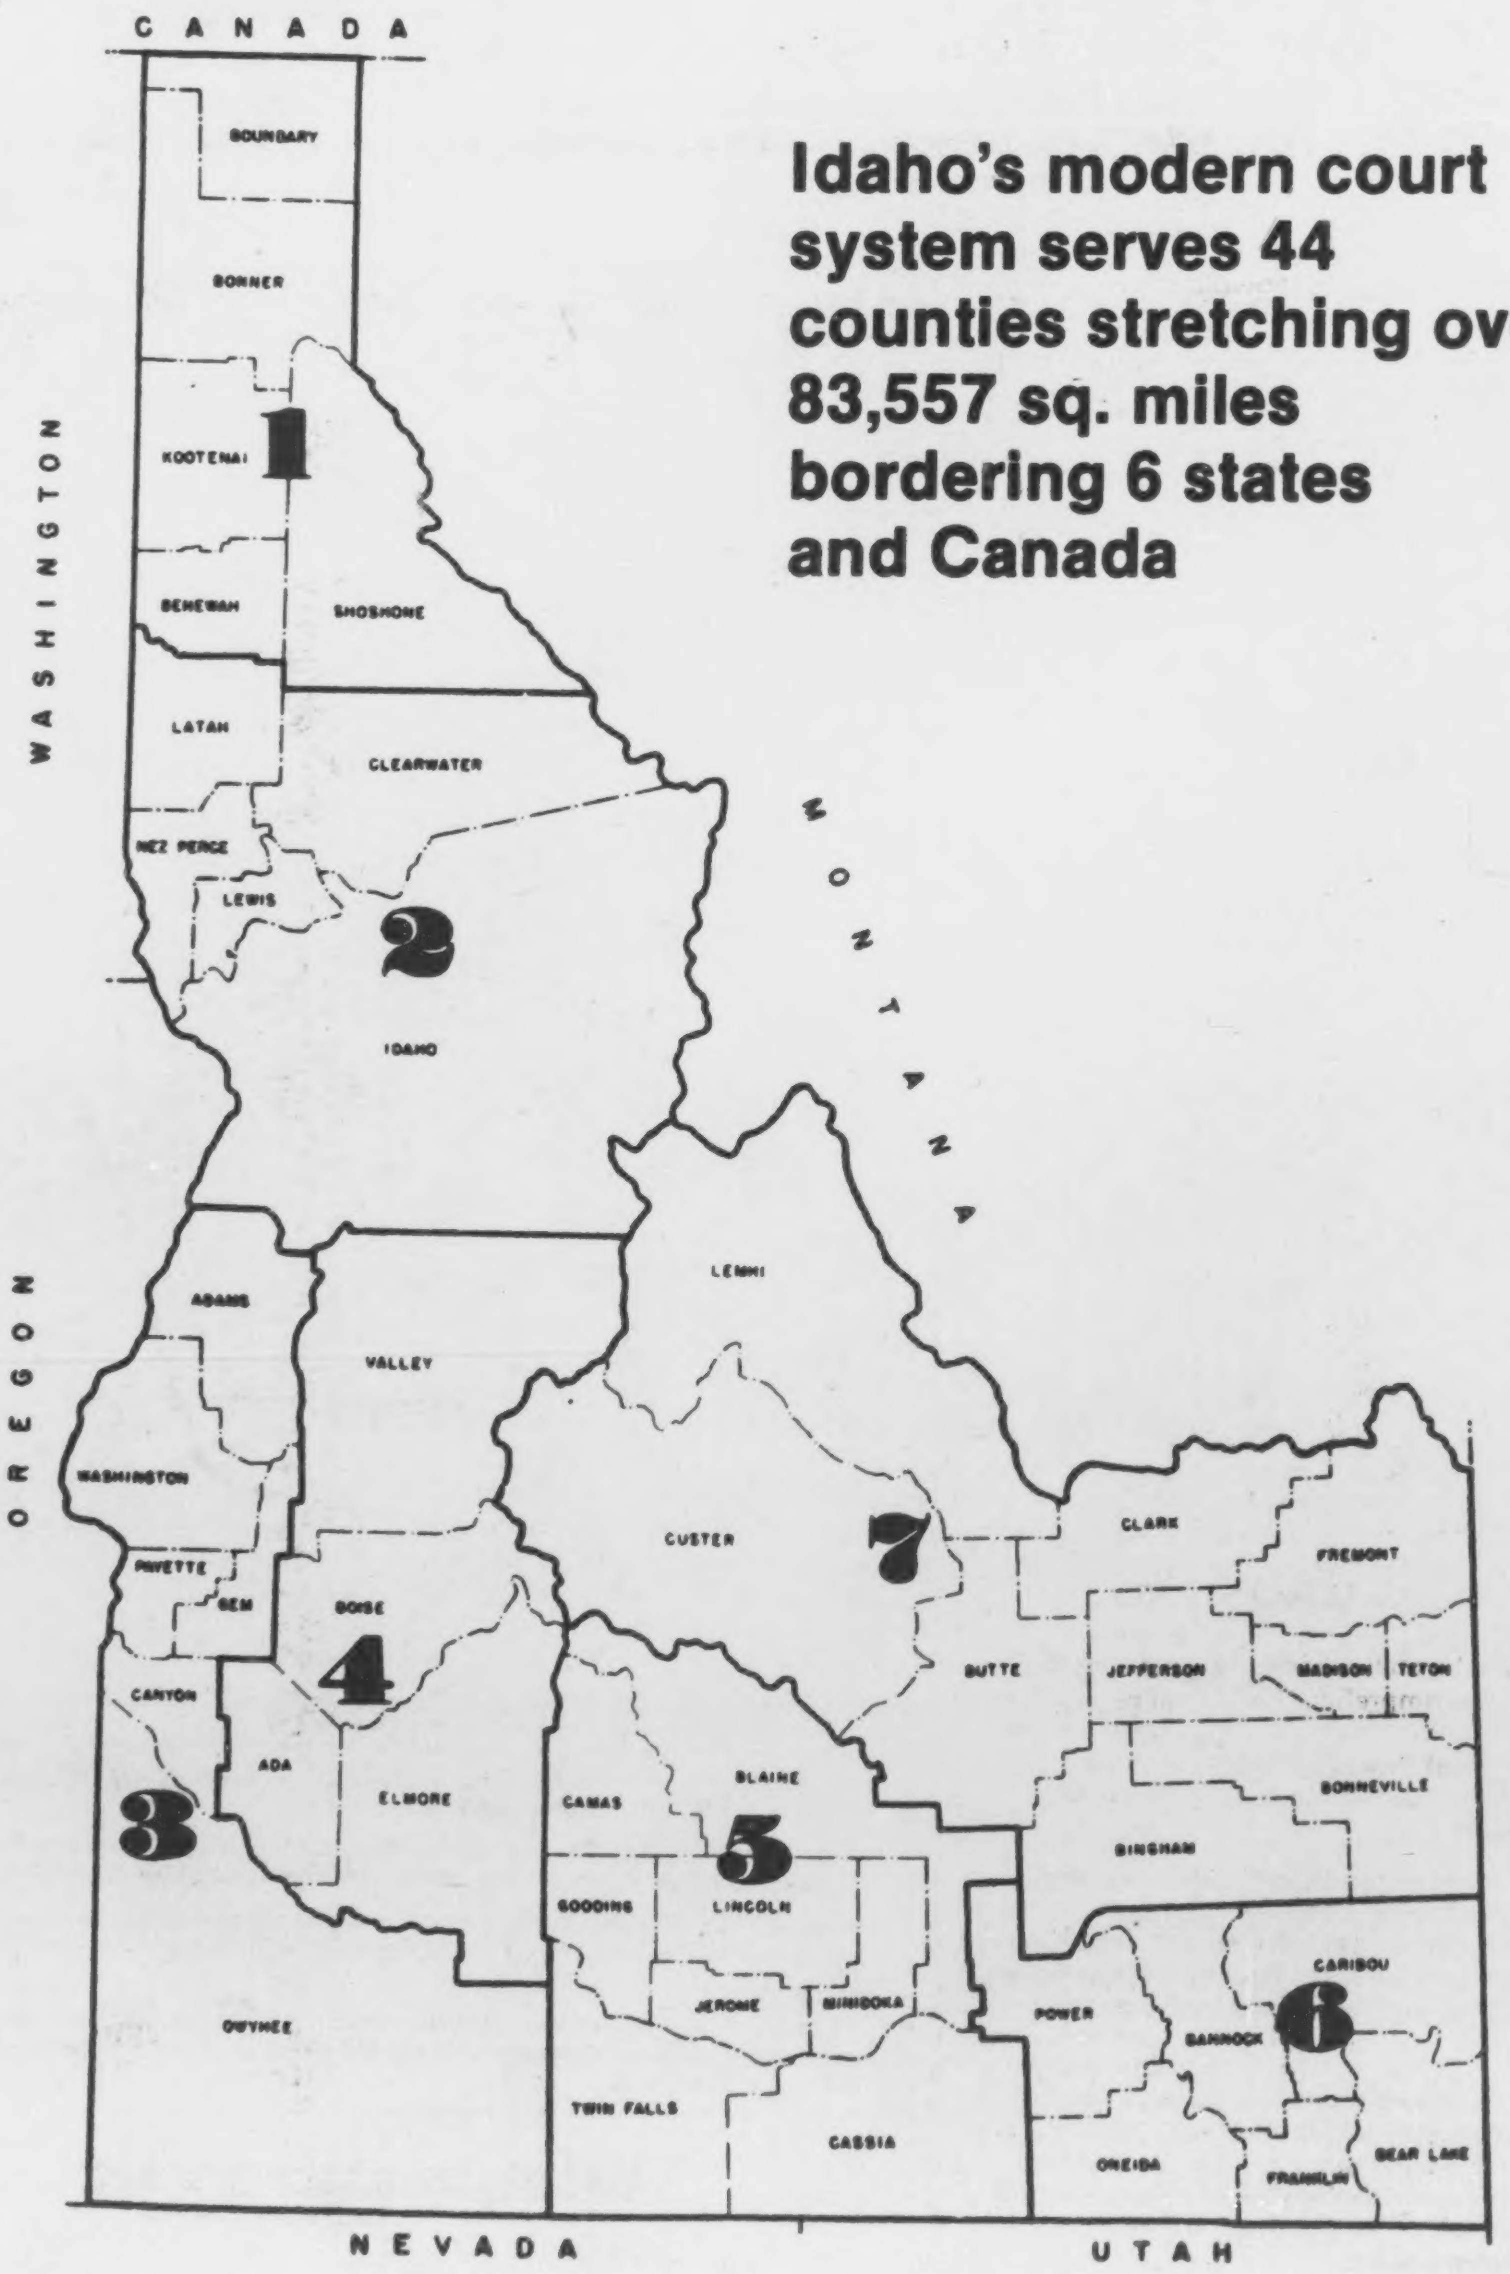
Idaho has a new chief justice and for the first time he'll be around for a while. On December 16,1982, the Justices of the Idaho Supreme Court met to elect -- unanimously -- Justice Charles R. Donaldson to be their chief justice for the next four years. The election was the first in Idaho's history, and was made possible by a constitutional amendment adopted in November.

Previously, the chief justice office was rotated among the justices depending on which justice had the shortest term to serve in office. In recent years the rotation system had proved unworkable, leading to a situation where the Supreme Court had eight chief justices in the last ten years,and there was no guarantee that the chief justice would be someone with administrative interest and skills.

The constitutional amendment capped a ten-year effort by the Idaho Supreme Court to adopt a new system for selecting a chief justice. In 1973, the Court had sought help from the Idaho Judicial Council and the State Bar to get rid of the rotation system, and in 1977, a proposed constitutional amendment narrowly missed a two-thirds vote in the legislature. In 1981, a resolution proposed by Judiciary Rules and Administration Committee Chairman (now Speaker) T.W. Stivers overwhelmingly passed both houses of the Idaho Legislature and on November 4, 1982, Idaho's voters gave HJR 2 the highest number of affirmative votes on the crowded ballot.

Chief Justice Donaldson began serving a four-year term on January 1, 1983. Upon taking office he stated that one of the main problems the Court faces in the coming term is how to keep the judicial system intact and operating efficiently and speedily while facing the fiscal restraints that are necessary as a result of the nation's and Idaho's economy. He stated that the Judicial Branch will do its utmost to cooperate with the Governor and the legislature in facing this problem, but that the judicial system cannot be dismantled so that the citizens' right of access to the courts for the settlement of their grievances will no longer be provided.

Chief Justice Donaldson received an undergraduate and law degree from the University of Idaho and practiced law in Boise before beginning a public service career that has spanned three decades. Prior to his first election to the Idaho Supreme Court in 1968 he served as a member of the state legislature and a district judge. In 1979 he was elected deputy chairman of the National Conference of Chief Justices, the highest post in that organization for a justice from a state with a rotating chief justice office.



Idaho's modern court system serves 44 counties stretching over 83,557 sq. miles bordering 6 states and Canada

Bike Bill Sparks Controversy

No other state has one like it. Bicyclists and judges think it's realistic and needed. Highway safety bureaucrats and driver training educators think it's a disaster and hazard to young children. It's a brand new Idaho law scheduled to go into effect July 1, 1983, which allows bicyclists to roll through a stop sign or make a right turn on a red light without stopping.

Under present Idaho law, as in most other states, a bicyclist who violates a traffic law has committed a criminal misdemeanor, and technically can be fined up to $300 and imprisoned in the county jail for up to six months. So when the 1982 Idaho Legislature undertook to decriminalize most minor traffic offenses, it was natural to streamline bicycle laws at the same time, making violations "civil public offenses," punishable by a maximum $16.50 civil penalty, and not subject to incarceration. The revisions went much further, however, resulting in a bike code that is unique in the nation.

As in most other states, bicyclists were treated the same as automobile drivers when it came to stopping at traffic lights or stop signs -- a full stop was required. Most bicyclists, however, rarely come to a complete stop. The conflict between the law and reality led to angry confrontations between cyclists and law enforcement officers. Judges were forced to fine commuters for technical violations which they recognized as functional bicycling behavior and common practice. The new law changed all that, allowing cyclists to make rolling stops at intersections.

The rolling stop law came under immediate attack from driver training educators: "Juveniles rolling through stop signs on bikes later would continue that behavior as adult drivers, and children would not be skillful enough to handle rolling stops."

Bicyclists countered that rolling stops are safer for small children than dismounting and starting up again, and that bike codes should encourage bicycle commuting.

Amid the clamour following the 1982 legislative session, the Administrative Director of the Courts formed an ad hoc committee of highway safety officials, driver training educators, law enforcement representatives, judges and bicyclists to seek a legislative compromise to satisfy traffic safety concerns, as well as bike commuter interests. After several meetings, the committee produced amendments which will be proposed to the legislature in 1983. The legislature then will determine whether Idaho's rolling stop law will be a brief and curious footnote in the history of government regulation of bicyclists, or whether it will be the starting point for a more rider-oriented approach to bicycle legislation.

Voters Unseat Two Judges

The conventional wisdom among judicial commentators is that retention elections are job insurance for judges. Indeed, the American Judicature Society has reported that only 33 judges have been voted out of office on a retention ballot nationwide since 1934. But Idaho's judges are finding out that they cannot depend on the conventional wisdom when it comes to election predictions, particularly in more rural counties.

The Idaho Legislature established retention elections for magistrate judges in 1974, decreeing that voters every four years would vote "yes" or "no" on the question of whether to retain their magistrate judge. (Prior to 1974, magistrate judges had been subject to periodic reappointment by district magistrate commissions.)

In the 1974 election, one magistrate lost his seat in Blaine County, and there have been several near misses over the years, but generally magistrate judges have racked up comfortable margins in winning retention elections. Statewide, the average over the years has been a 75% "yes" vote.

All the statistics went out the window on November 4, 1982, when magistrate judges in Lemhi and Butte counties were not approved for retention by the county's voters. Considering the lack of frequency with which judges are not retained nationally, such an occurrence was at least statistically significant.

The magistrates who were not retained were Judge Milton A. Slavin, 37, who failed to be retained by a 1,139 to 1,474 vote; and Judge Glenn Phillips, 55, who narrowly failed to be retained by 762 "yes" votes to 776 "no" votes. Slavin had been appointed a magistrate judge in 1976, while Phillips became a magistrate when the division was created in 1971, after over 13 years of service as a probate judge.

Both Lemhi and Butte counties are rural in character, (Butte has 3,342 people; Lemhi's population is 7,460), and some court watchers feel that a retention loss could be duplicated in an urban county only with substantial publicity and organized opposition. Nonetheless, any push to add Idaho's district judges to a retention ballot will be met with less enthusiasm by the judges themselves following the 1982 election results.

Technology Improvements Through Automation

Idaho historically has been a national leader in applying advanced computer technology to judicial administration. In the early 1970's Idaho was one of the first states in the nation to establish a statewide automated case tracking system and later was an originator of the automated appellate court system. While other state court systems are now catching up, Idaho is continuing to find new ways to apply technology to court operations in a way that saves resources and personnel as well as improve operations.

In 1982 the Idaho judiciary designed and implemented an automated budget information system, which enables court staff to prepare and modify the judiciary's annual appropriation requests entirely by computer, resulting in significant time savings.

The Supreme Court and Court of Appeals now print and mail notices (which had been prepared and mailed manually) by computer to attorneys, litigants, court clerks and judges.

Other enhancements to existing systems included modifications to the Attorney General Information System, which allows the State Attorney General to use by-product information to manage and monitor appeals caseloads for attorneys in that office; and conversion to on-line inquiry and update capabilities in the statewide withheld judgment register system, which is on call to judges, presentence investigators, prosecutors and defense counsel.

With the help of skilled in-house staff, the judiciary's aging computer (first purchased in 1976 with a federal grant) has been able to pay dividends many times over. "Our goal is to provide the courts with the data and services they need, when they need it," states Jean Becken, computer operator and data entry supervisor. The applications in 1982 alone show that goal was being met.

THE MESSAGE LEXIS HOPES YOU DON'T READ

There's an inherent problem in any computer research system that gives you only the text of the court opinion. Many such cases can remain hidden and unretrievable because the search terms you would ordinarily use to retrieve them are not included in the text of the opinion. For example, such familiar legal terms as landlord and tenant, divorce, products liability and bankruptcy may not occur in the text of the opinion, even though the cases decidedly involve those subjects. What's the legal researcher to do?

WESTLAW solves the problem by providing vital editorial enhancements in its Full Text Plus data bases. Synopses and headnotes contain the important conceptual terms—such as landlord and tenant—that may not necessarily appear in the court opinion.

Our point is this: the opinions don't always use the familiar legal concepts and terminology upon which lawyers depend. That's why you need the editorial enhancement of synopses and headnotes provided only by WESTLAW's Full Text Plus. Without them, you'll miss relevant cases.

For a demonstration or more information on how WESTLAW will help you research and win cases, contact your West Publishing Company representative, or call Karen Holcomb, collect, at 612/228-2506. West Publishing Company, 50 West Kellogg Blvd., P.O. Box 3526, St. Paul, MN 55165.

THE PROOF IS IN THE RETRIEVING . . .

A recent study of reported New York cases since 1970, involving the legal subject of "Landlord or Tenant", showed the following results:

80 cases did not contain the word "landlord" or "tenant" in the court opinion, but were retrievable because one or both words were contained in the WESTLAW synopsis.

The search was then modified to check if any of these additional search terms appeared in the text of the opinion: "rent," "lease," "lessee" and "lessor." The results were as follows:

28 cases did not contain any of the search terms in the text of the opinion. Again, the cases were retrieved because the word "landlord" or "tenant" occurred in the WESTLAW synopsis.

INTRODUCTION

"We cannot use even the best and most scientifically compiled statistics to solve the fundamental problems of jurisprudence. They cannot give us a measure of values of competing claims, or a criterion of justice, or a theory of what we are seeking to bring about by means of law. But it does not follow that we have no use for statistics. On the contrary, the stress which we now put upon the legal order as a process and upon the judicial process as a significant meaning of the term 'law,' and along with the administrative process entitled to a place in the front rank in the science of law,....indicates where statistical method is to be made use of. We must learn how to use statistics to control the quality of the output of the operations by which the legal order is maintained and carried on."

Pound, Judicial Councils
and Judicial Statistics,
28 A.B.A.J. 98 (1942).

"Courtroom backlogs did not arrive with the twentieth century, nor are they unique to the United States. The historical accounts of delay are legion and disturbingly similar. In 42 AD the Emperor Claudius requested that the Roman Senate pass a law creating a special summer session for the Roman Court to ease the backlog. Goethe informs us in his autobiography that cases in his day were being filed in the German courts twice as fast as they could be disposed of - in one instance, cases remained on the docket of the court in Wetzlar for 100 years! Shakespeare listed the 'laws delay' as the fifth of man's burdens in Hamlet (act 3, sc. 1). In this country the New York Supreme Court reported a backlog as early as 1800. In 1839 David Dudley Field said of conditions in New York that 'speedy justice is a thing unknown.'"

Manning, C.A., Judgeship Criteria
Standards for Evaluating the Need for Additional Judgeships, American
Judicature Society, 1973.

Whereas Justice Pound illustrates the value of statistics to the judiciary in general, Mr. Manning presents an example of the needs such statistics can address.

The Idaho Courts have long appreciated the importance of statistical data for measuring the extent and trends of caseload factors, along with a wide assortment of other measurements by which an accurate picture of the past, present, and projected situation can be grasped.

In 1973, Idaho's was one of the first state judiciaries to implement a computerized system to collect detailed information on every case, of whatever type, filed in all of its courts. The system, called "CLASS" (Caseload Analysis Support System) has been in use continually since 1973, with occasional refinements. Today, the CLASS system stands as one of the finest of its kind in the nation.

Data are received from each trial court in the form of daily reports. These undergo scrupulous manual and computerized editing, after which the error-free data are input to the CLASS system on the Supreme Court's computer. From data thus processed, management reports are prepared monthly for the Administrative Office of the Courts, District Administrative Judges and Trial Court Administrators. In addition, the system produces annual reports required by statute. Information generated by the system has become an integral part of the planning, budgeting and daily operational processes of the Idaho Courts.

The appendix to the Idaho Courts Annual Report for 1982 consists primarily of year-end reports generated by the CLASS system, with the exception of Supreme Court data which were derived from another automated system, called "ATS" (Appeals Tracking System), which is also resident on the Supreme Court's computer and was also developed in-house.

The success of the CLASS system is a direct result of the cooperation of all the District Court Clerks and their deputies throughout Idaho. They are its only source of input. The dedication with which they carry out the CLASS reporting activities is the hearth, the hammer and the anvil by which the system's reliability is forged.

The Administrative Office of the Courts is pleased to take this opportunity to thank these dedicated court clerks for their cooperation and hard work. This appreciation is the more profound because of our awareness that these people are among the hardest-working public servants in government, even without the burden of daily CLASS reporting.
